

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A salicide block area is provided around a gate electrode. Polysilicon coupling portions are formed, which extend at plurality of points from the gate electrode to an area outside of an active region. A contact provided at this inactive region electrically connects the gate electrode to gate electrode metal wiring, which is provided above the gate electrode.